American luxury brand Judith Leiber is collaborating with British department store Harrods.

The fashion label has bejeweled a line of limited-edition merchandise available only at the European retailer. The bedazzled launch nods to Harrods signatures as it celebrates a 175th anniversary this year.

Each complete with goldtone hardware and chain straps, the new accessories are now live on the Harrods website.

The Judith Leiber x Harrods collection includes the Egg Heriz Clutch Bag encrusted in maroon, black, gold and silver crystals, it retails for $7,402 and the French Fries Clutch Bag, which features a sparkling green carton branded with the United Kingdom-based partner's logo. At $8,868, the item is the most expensive option of the drop.

Two final designs commemorate the retailer's birthday by placing its motifs front and center.

Central to the brimmed Cap Clutch Bag, available in two colorways, is the department store's iconic logo, shown on a gold-toned version in green crystals, while a silver option spells out the department store's name in black studs and is backed by a shining depiction of Henry, the famed Harrods teddy bear. The Embellished Harrods Bear Clutch Bag, on sale for $8,116, offers yet another homage to the stuffed animal.

Found throughout the British stores, the toy represents a central theme in the ongoing anniversary programming, unfolding both in-person and in the digital world (see story).
